

HOW TO COLORING

Spiroglyphics are fun spiral puzzles that hide neat pictures, like spooky Halloween stuff or other cool designs, behind what seems like just a bunch of twisty lines. They're great for chilling out—as you color them in, the hidden image starts showing up, making it feel like a little magic trick. You don't need to be good at drawing; it's super easygoing and you can get hooked quick. Go ahead, give it a shot and see the surprise come to life!

Prep your tools: Use a dark pen or marker (black works great). Slip paper under if using markers to avoid bleed.

Start smart: Begin with spiral center outward.

Follow the flow: Color inside the lines, which vary in width. Rotate the page for easy curves; stay steady but don't fret over perfection.

Reveal and enjoy: Finish, step back, and admire the hidden pic. Answers are in the back, but no peeking early—spoil the fun!
